

What are Neighborhood Greenways?

Neighborhood Greenways turn roads into places for people. Neighborhood Greenways are residential streets generally one off of main arterials with low volumes of auto traffic and low speeds where people who walk and ride bicycles are given priority. People can continue to drive cars and park on Neighborhood Greenways, while traffic safety improves for everyone. Signs and engineered traffic calming along the road help people who walk or bike safely get across streets.

Neighborhood Greenways make sense financially

The biggest construction costs of Greenways are building safer ways across busy streets with signals, crosswalks and traffic islands. Street improvements such as trees, art, and benches can be added by neighbors.

Neighborhood Greenways improve public safety

Greenways are great for local neighborhoods, for children walking to school, people walking their dogs, people who bike, and people who use walkers or wheelchairs and want to have a healthy, more protected way to get around their neighborhoods and across streets to places they want to go -- shopping, parks, schools, and transit.

Seattle Neighborhood Greenways identifies, advocates for, and activates safe healthy streets, particularly cost-effective, family-friendly Neighborhood Greenways!

Please join us!
www.SeattleGreenways.org

Seattle Neighborhood Greenways is a tax-exempt 501(c)3 organization under the umbrella of Seattle Parks Foundation

What are Neighborhood Greenways?

Neighborhood Greenways turn roads into places for people. Neighborhood Greenways are residential streets generally one off of main arterials with low volumes of auto traffic and low speeds where people who walk and ride bicycles are given priority. People can continue to drive cars and park on Neighborhood Greenways, while traffic safety improves for everyone. Signs and engineered traffic calming along the road help people who walk or bike safely get across streets.

Neighborhood Greenways make sense financially

The biggest construction costs of Greenways are building safer ways across busy streets with signals, crosswalks and traffic islands. Street improvements such as trees, art, and benches can be added by neighbors.

Neighborhood Greenways improve public safety

Greenways are great for local neighborhoods, for children walking to school, people walking their dogs, people who bike, and people who use walkers or wheelchairs and want to have a healthy, more protected way to get around their neighborhoods and across streets to places they want to go -- shopping, parks, schools, and transit.

Seattle Neighborhood Greenways identifies, advocates for, and activates safe healthy streets, particularly cost-effective, family-friendly Neighborhood Greenways!

Please join us!
www.SeattleGreenways.org

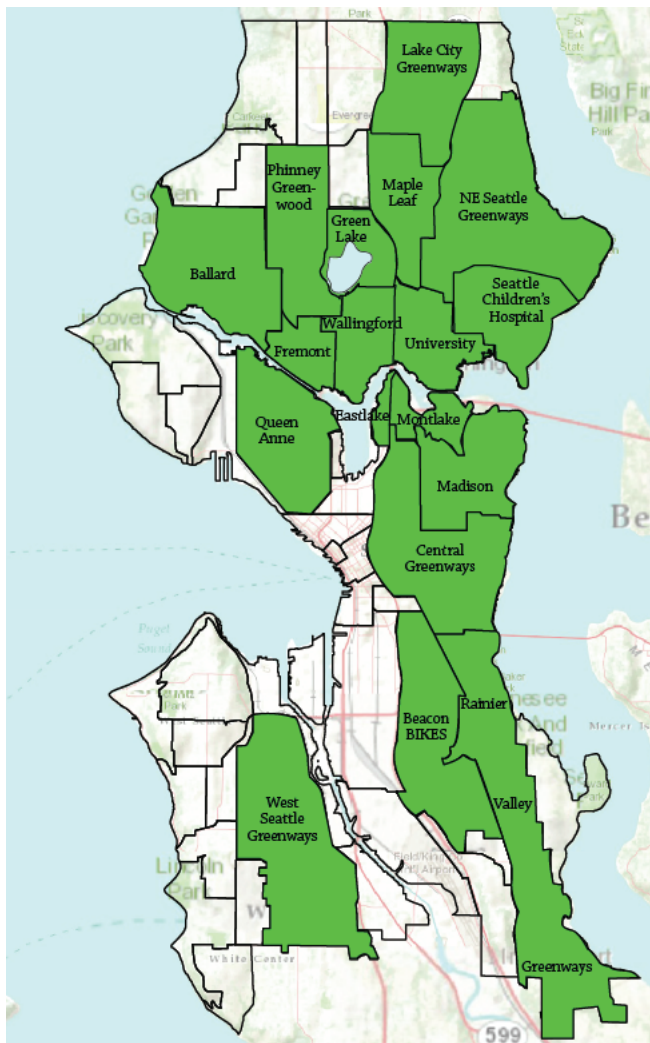

Seattle Neighborhood Greenways is a tax-exempt 501(c)3 organization under the umbrella of Seattle Parks Foundation

Seattle Neighborhood Greenways is a rapidly-growing non-profit organization that helps local neighborhood groups to identify, advocate for, and activate safe healthy streets. We invite other neighborhoods to join our volunteer coalition!

We value optimism, dignity, community, education, city building, and partnerships. Please join us!

www.SeattleGreenways.org

Seattle Neighborhood Greenways is a rapidly-growing non-profit organization that helps local neighborhood groups to identify, advocate for, and activate safe healthy streets. We invite other neighborhoods to join our volunteer coalition!

We value optimism, dignity, community, education, city building, and partnerships. Please join us!

www.SeattleGreenways.org

